Relational approaches are revitalizing psychotherapy. Crucial to its understanding is the importance of relationship in human development throughout life. The relational emphasis reorients clinical work and the therapy relationship raising important technical issues which require rethinking. The Relational School is a venue for the study of this new theory and practice.

Membership of The Relational School is now open and we invite you to join us.

- Seminars, short courses, supervision, workshops
- Preferential rates for events including the Teach Ins
- Access to members only discussion groups on The Relational School website
- Discounts on key journals
- Be a part of building The Relational Community in the UK and Internationally
